Flour on the counter, Mom's got the pie crust rolling Radio's playing low and the kitchen window's glowing Dad's already eyeing every dinner roll in sight
Calling dibs before the turkey even meets the light

Everybody's reaching, everybody's hungry
But hold that fork a second,
there's something here for me

One more thing before we eat
Pull up a chair, take a seat
Every name around this table
Every laugh, every story
I've been meaning to say thank you
Now I finally get to sing it
One more thing before we eat

Grandpa tells the same joke and we laugh like it's the first time
Little cousins under the table trading pie for the last line Aunt Rosie brought the green beans that nobody really eats
But we'd miss them if she didn't, that's the way it ought to be

Everybody's reaching, everybody's hungry
But hold that fork a second,
there's something here for me

One more thing before we eat
Pull up a chair, take a seat
Every name around this table
Every laugh, every story
I've been meaning to say thank you
Now I finally get to sing it
One more thing before we eat

They laughed when they heard that line
Then Mom reached over for my hand
I'd been meaning to say thank you
This year, I finally sang it

One more thing before we eat
Now the gravy's getting cold and the candles burning sweet
Every name around this table
Is the reason I've got something to sing
One more thing before we eat
